Nowadays sustainable development is become the conversation topic. First sustainable development could be practiced on 2 ways. One is preserving resources, and the other is regulating people by law. I think aquaculture industry is typical example of preserving resources. Korean marine resources are remarkably decreased. The reason was overfishing. People capture fishes indiscriminatingly. Resultingly the captured both female fish which is pregnant, and young fishes. Aquaculture industry can recover this problem by breeding fishes by human hand. Also we can regulate people by the law. For example in korea people can't capture snow crabs, while particular period. the spawning season. Also they can't capture the crabs which were not grown enough. if we save marine resources we can stock many seafood resources, and it could be connected to overcoming poverty. Than we can achieve our purposes. We can mitigate poverty, save our food resources, also we can use our marine resources sustainably.

SDGs has 17 purposes. There are many things like end of poverty, or promotion of welfare, sustainable use of marine resources and so forth. Honestly one country can't deal this goals. We need partner who can help each other. so we need to revitalize our partnership. We can do this by many way. Like KRD, we can interchange our students, that could revitalize our youth's partnership. Also we can make a agreement between nations. There already some agreements, which for SDGs. They are strengthen our partnership and also implement there details of agreement which are relevant with SDGs. They are very important. But we need to focus our youth partnerships. Each nations youth is most important participants of future. Most of SDGs purposes are for future. So youth need to help each other. They can interchange and debate their opinions on SDGs. It can't effect right now. But if youth continue these action and when future come, it could be powerful partnership. so I think youth partnership is most important thing for SDGs.
